What to do when you encounter a large/wide table?

Example of a long and wide table.

Some pages of the wiki includes tables to organise and display data relevant to the particular section and topic. Some of the tables incorporate a large amount of interrelated data. A reader who are quickly glancing often find it obstructing the flow of skimming the contents as some table would require long scrolls to get past it. Also, some table can be have many columns, resulting in a wide table that may not fit into the screen. Such cases are marked with a notice above the table so that readers are aware of how to navigate in or around the table.

Long tables

Long tables are skipped via pressing Collapse link beside the name of the table.

Wide tables

Navigating inside a wide tables can be done in the following ways:

1. If you are visiting using a computer:
   - You click inside the table, and then use left (←) and right (→) arrow keys on the keyboard to move the table left and right
   - Or, you can find a scroll bar below the table, click on the white space of the scroll bar or click and move the grey portion of the scroll bar to move the table left and right.
2. If you are visiting from a phone, tablet, and touch enabled screen, you can press and swipe on the table to move the table left and right,

Blue Gold Program Wiki

The wiki version of the Lessons Learnt Report of the Blue Gold program, documents the experiences of a technical assistance (TA) team working in a development project implemented by the Bangladesh Water Development Board (BWDB) and the Department of Agricultural Extension (DAE) over an eight+ year period from March 2013 to December 2021. The wiki lessons learnt report (LLR) is intended to complement the BWDB and DAE project completion reports (PCRs), with the aim of recording lessons learnt for use in the design and implementation of future interventions in the coastal zone.
